Bogotá, Colombia
October 16, 2006

Mr. Rodrigo de Rato
Managing Director
International Monetary Fund
Washington, D.C. 20431

Dear Mr. de Rato:

In 2006, Colombia's economy is likely to prolong its good performance, as the continuity of strong policies has improved confidence and promoted vigorous growth in investment. Real GDP is expected to grow by 5.2 percent, while inflation is targeted to decline to 4.5 percent—the lowest level in decades. The external current account deficit is likely to remain low at 1.6 percent of GDP, owing to the strength of world commodity prices as well as robust growth in non-traditional exports. The economy handled with little difficulty the volatility in international financial markets earlier this year, providing a clear indication that it has become more resilient.

The Fund's support through the Stand-By Arrangement that expires in November 2006 has helped provide a transparent policy framework and fortify confidence. We are requesting the completion of the third and final review under this arrangement. The performance criteria at end-June 2006 and end-July 2006 and the continuous performance criteria have been observed and the program agenda has been completed (Tables 1 and 2). With regard to the structural benchmarks, in July 2006 we submitted a revenue-neutral tax reform designed to cut distortions and in September 2006 the draft constitutional amendment to reform intergovernmental transfers was presented. We plan to submit a draft law to strengthen the independence of the financial supervisor no later than November 2006. The 2007 budget presented to congress in July includes some provisions to trim earmarked revenues over time.

Over the medium term, we remain fully committed to strengthening policies further to sustain economic growth and to make the economy more resilient. We intend to keep fiscal policy on a sustainable path with a view to reducing public debt to 40 percent of GDP by 2010, limit annual inflation to the range of 2–4 percent in the medium term and to continue to deepen structural reforms. We look forward to maintaining a strong policy dialogue with the Fund in the context of annual Article IV consultations.

Sincerely yours,

/s/
